Use Choice to choose!

SOFTWARE Choice always has been the best magazine for home computer software — and this, our third issue, is no exception! You'll find details of scores of games, plus utilities and peripherals, as well as the chance to win some great prizes (centre pages).

Please remember that if you can't find a product on the shelves at the store where you picked up your Software Choice, do ask a sales assistant.

Provided demand has not been too great, it is often possible to order the product you'd like. Remember, though, that you may be asked to leave a deposit.

We are only able to bring you your free Software Choice through the support of the country's major software companies. So we would like to thank them all on your behalf. Our index is on page 14.

And now for the news eagerly awaited by the hundreds of readers who entered the Macsen Software competition in our spring issue.

You'll remember that you had to use 12 jumbled letters to form a word and then make as many words as was possible, of four letters or more, from the same letters.

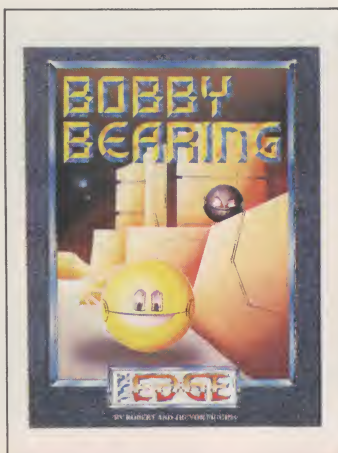

The jumbled word was Blockbusters, the name of a Macsen game, which all of you got right. And the reader who made the most words, by far, was Christopher Womack, of Pontefract, Yorks, with 1,208. He and S. Woodbridge, of Rottingdean, East Sussex (981 words), each win the first prizes of five Macsen games.

Winners of the two second prizes of three games were Mrs J. Fortescue, of Cheltenham, Glos (752), and D. Gough, of Leicester (690). And the winners of the two third prizes of one Macsen game each were Claire Eke, of Bromley, Kent (661) and C. Bustin, of Tamworth, Staffs (566). As well as counting the words, we also judged the tie-breaker phrase.

Congratulations to all our winners — your prizes have been despatched by Macsen Software. And we hope that all who entered enjoyed the competition.

Until the next issue of Software Choice . . . have fun!

Software Choice previews some of the best at the big show — see you there!

3-7 SEPTEMBER 1986
OLYMPIA LONDON

SOFTWARE SET TO DAZZLE AT BIGGEST-EVER PCW SHOW

BRITAIN'S biggest-ever Personal Computer World Show opens its doors to the public on September 5 with a dazzling array of software and accessories for home computer users.

New adventure and arcade games are being launched by all the big names — and some talented newcomers. Look out for music kits and family entertainment games, accessories like modems, lightpens and joysticks, plus learning aids and lots of useful software, all designed to make more of your micro.

This is the ninth event in the series, and the third to take place at London's Olympia — the centre that's easy to reach by car, bus or train. The first two days are for trade and business visitors only, and the show then opens to the public from Friday to Sunday, September 5-7.

Arcade action is the theme of the US Gold stand, featuring some of the best coin-op games converted for home computers, including titles such as Express Raider, Gauntlet and Breakthru.

For more excitement, Who is the Infiltrator? combines arcade action, strategy, simulation and adventure in one great game. It attracted plenty of attention at the Consumer Electronics Show in Chicago earlier in the year and looks set to do the same at the PCW Show.

New from Firebird is The Hive, for the Spectrum and Amstrad, in which a swarm of bees is determined to take over the world — unless you can enter the hive and destroy the queen bee. More thrills for Amstrad users come in the shape of Starstrike II, follow-up to the original Starstrike space game.

Domark offers something different: Trivial Pursuit, based on the best-selling board game of which nearly 70 million copies have been sold worldwide, including three million in the UK. Mark Strachan, Domark's joint managing director, said: "At last, here is a game for all the family — mum and dad included."

The show will be the launch pad for three new series of budget games from Blue Ribbon Software, including Astro Plumber, Diamond Mine II and Darts, all of which first appeared on the BBC, plus a new release, M-Droid, which will appear on other machines shortly.

Cheetah will be making music with the Specdrum and its Amstrad equivalent, the recently-launched Amdrum, together with digital sound samplers — for the "N-n-19" effect — and MIDI interfaces for both machines.

Elite will be previewing its Christmas line-up, including arcade hits from Japan and America, plus the debut of The New Scooby Doo written by Gargoyle Games, together with the latest classics from the back catalogue, now being re-issued at pocket money prices.

On a more serious level, Mirrorsoft will be showing new versions of Fleet Street Editor, the desktop publishing program which has been a best-seller on the BBC and is now becoming available for other machines.

From Tasman comes a range of wordprocessing software and similar products, now available on a wider range of machines including Amstrad PCW and CPC machines, Spectrum, Commodore, MSX and QL.

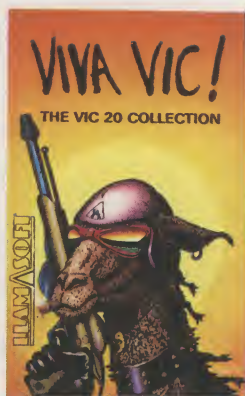

The layout of the PCW Show follows the pattern set last year: Olympia 2 is reserved for business and professional users, while the National hall includes products for both home and business — with the accent on computing for leisure and entertainment.

Special attractions in the National hall include Chartbusters, a giant video display of the year's best-selling games and, of course, the Association of Computer Clubs will be turning out in force — ready to show their programming skills and help with problems and queries.

TICKETS

Tickets are available in advance at £2 each from PCW Show Ticket Office, 11 Manchester Square, London W1M 5AB. Or you can, of course, pay on the door.

Cheetah Marketing

The Cheetah 125 Joystick features four extremely sensitive fire buttons — two on the base, two on the handle — ruggedly styled hand grip, auto-fire function, 12 months' warranty, eight-directional control, heavy-duty base with four strong stabilising suction cups and extra-strong high conductivity leaf-type fire contacts. Robustly built and comfortable to use. Get the UK's favourite joystick for hours of fast-moving fun. Compatible with the Spectrum, Commodore 64, Amstrad, Atari, MSX, VIC-20 and many others.

Quickshot 2 Turbo Joystick £13.95

Spectravideo

The all-new Quickshot 2 Turbo is based on the world's best-selling joystick — the Quickshot 2. Microswitches have now been incorporated in the design to give accurate and positive games control and offers an easy match for the latest generation of "joystick breaker" games. The Turbo also comes with an "auto-fire" facility and four stabilising suction cups. The Turbo also features the original "helicopter-style" hard grip unique to Quickshot joysticks, and a fiery Turbo-red base. D-type nine-pin plug fits all popular computers.

WIN A T-Shirt & A YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION

If you can answer the three simple questions below you stand a great chance of winning a T-shirt and a year's subscription to either COMPUTER & VIDEO GAMES, SINCLAIR USER or COMMODORE USER.

All you have to do is find the answers, jot them down on a postcard with your name and address, choice of magazine T-shirt (M or L) & subscription; and send it too.

Marketing Dept., EMAP, Priory Court, 30-32 Farringdon Lane, London EC1R 3AU.

By the middle of September, when this issue of Software Choice will be replaced by the winter issue, we will draw twenty winning entrants out of the hat. If you are one of the lucky ones your subscription will begin with the September issue. You will be informed by letter and in the magazines.

COMPETITION QUESTIONS

1. Who is the character who appears in C&VG every month, who is portrayed on the front of the T-shirt?
2. The best games in Sinclair User are awarded the Sinclair User, _____?
3. Who writes for Commodore User under the name of Hot Shots?

The answers can be found in the latest issues of the greatest computer mags in the world.

COMPUTER & VIDEO GAMES The original and the best. Still the biggest selling games mag in the world.

SINCLAIR USER Games Reviews, News, Hardware Reviews, Hints & Tips, Helpline, Listings. You name it Sinclair User covers it.

COMMODORE USER Whether you've got a 64, 16, Plus 4, 128 or even an Amiga. Commodore User is the fast growing magazine you should be reading.
